

the incidental collection

TELIA RUMAL

BY

Aneeth Arora

APPLICATIONS

A home filled with textiles, art and antiques, there was no doubt in my mind we had to make this room speak the language already defined for the rest of the house. A cloak room, not just a powder room. With vintage coats beautifully framed in a box they become art installation. An old carved wood panel adorns the vanity. The entire process of designing this room started when my client fell in love with these tiles from FCML. Designed by Pero these tiles are inspired by geometric patterns seen in Indian textiles from Andhara Pradesh called Telia Rumal.

These tiles bring the look of historic ikat fabric styles to ceramic tiles in eclectic wall and floor tile patterns. The motifs used in this collection have been especially developed for pero on an ikat telia rumal with a twist. This combination of classic ikat patterns from ancient textiles to a new medium, incorporate an earthy texture in the Grey Telia Rumal collection and a contrast Blue Telia Rumal, creating a seamless pattern for different interior spaces.

A deeper red with a hint of purple.

The stunning floor tiles from @fcmlsurfaces designed by @ilovepero. The entire design of this space was based on my clients love for these floor tiles. Design on the tiles is inspired by a double Ikat pattern called Telia Rimal (head gear for oily hair)

Telangana and its surrounding areas in Andhara Pradesh are famous for this textile craft. My clients love for design & craft is what defines every nook and cranny in this home.

There is a story waiting to be told. I believe it should always be the clients story. Their collection, their passion, their memories.

Their love for vintage textiles, craft and this beautiful pattern interpreted by @ilovepero for @fcmlsurfaces weaves a story in this stunning powder room.

Vintage wood panels add to the design language.

Thank you for this beautiful shot @ishashahstudio

These tiles bring the look of historic ikat fabric styles to ceramic tiles in eclectic wall and floor tile patterns. The motifs used in this collection have been especially developed for pero on an ikat telia rumal with a twist. This combination of classic ikat patterns from ancient textiles to a new medium, incorporate an earthy texture in the Grey Telia Rumal collection and a contrast Blue Telia Rumal, creating a seamless pattern for different interior spaces.

These ceramic tiles emulate the aesthetic of historical ikat fabric styles, presenting an eclectic array of patterns suitable for both walls and floors. The collection features motifs uniquely crafted for pero, drawing inspiration from the traditional ikat telia rumal with a contemporary twist. The Grey Telia Rumal collection introduces an earthy texture, while the Blue Telia Rumal offers a contrasting hue, seamlessly blending classic ikat patterns from ancient textiles into a modern medium for diverse interior spaces

fcml surfaces

LET'S CREATE INSPIRED WORK TOGETHER

SHOWROOM Address

FCML Surfaces, Sultanpur Chowk, Mehrauli Gurgaon Road, New Delhi- 110030

Mumbai | S/10, Shakti Mill Lane, Mahalaxmi

Bangalore | 80 Feet road, Indiranagar

Pune | Mangalwar Peth Lane

Chennai | S.S.Enterprises 30 Old No 123 Chamiers Road Nandanam

COPORATE OFFICE Address

A-217, Pocket A, Okhla Phase I, Okhla Industrial Estate, New Delhi, Delhi 110020

Phone : 8130795071

Email : delhisurfaces@fcmlindia.com

Website : www.ikigaisurfaces.com

Instagram - @fcmlsurfaces

Facebook - fcmlsurfaces

Pinterest - @fcmlsurfaces

Twitter - fcmlsurfaces